Peer Group Learning (PGL)

- ▶ It is the educational practice of students interacting with each other to achieve educational goal.
- ▶ It is an innovative teaching method and knowledge sharing programme.
- ▶ It covers a wide range of activities hence there is no unique definition.
- ▶ It assigns active role to both students and teachers in the learning process.
- ▶ Peer learning emphasizes students simultaneously learning and contributing to other students' learning. There are many types of PGL programmes.

PGL in Our College.

- ▶ Peer Group Learning is treated as teaching and learning strategy that involves groups of Post graduate students working together to develop a new academic culture and academic excellence through innovative teaching and learning practice in our college.
- ▶ Each member of a peer group team is responsible not only for learning what is taught but also for helping junior students to learn, thus creating an atmosphere of collaborative learning practice .

Administrative structure of PGL

Highlights of PGL

- ▶ Academic sessions of PGL teachers in their own degree classes(syllabus based, general topics, discussions on recent developments in concerned subjects, interactive sessions..etc)
